COME SEE TAHAWUS GALLERY'S GROUP EXHIBIT CELEBRATING NATURE'S WONDROUS GIFT: FLOWERS

Artists have found flowers to be an endless source of inspiration for creative expression. We are drawn to flowers for many reasons. Their colors, fragrances, shapes and textures are beautiful. They can affect mood by triggering feelings of joy and contentment. Finally, flowers carry symbolic meanings and are a powerful link to the natural world.

Tahawus Gallery in Au Sable Forks, NY is pleased to present the works of eight artists from the Adirondacks who celebrate the beauty and wonder of flowers. Noah Bonesteel, Heidi Gero, Audrey Godlewski, Sue Ann Godlewski, Alison Haas, Lynda Mussen, Carrie Plumadore, and Linda Williams show us a garden of artistic exploration where the petals unfold in unexpected ways.

Rebecca Kelly, Artistic Director, notes that, "We are amazed at the wonderfully different ways there are to treat this subject. Some artists even use components of the flowers themselves to create compositions. The wide range of methods in this show are amazing. These eight artists invite us to look at nature's beauty with fresh eyes and imagination."

Prepare to see flowers as never before through collage, eco-printing, wool felting, painting, paper sculpture, quilling, and intaglio printmaking. Come and experience the vibrant creativity that bloomed from nature's inspiration.

All are welcome and admission is free. Tahawus Gallery is open Saturdays 2-4 pm, and by appointment.

ABOUT THE GALLERY: "Over the past decade, Tahawus has featured internationally acclaimed artists such as rabble-rouser Rockwell Kent and Disney designer Arto Monaco; focused on workaday mill employees and railroads; examined the artistry of the Mohawks; and shown a light on a myriad of talented local artists, poets, photographers and historians. Each was impressive in its own right, but together they represent an artistic portfolio, much of it generated within a stone's throw of the Ausable River, that would be the envy of any community" Tim Roland, Sun Community News
